SUBJECT: Contract Personnel Pay Data

On attached sheets I listed, under the major categories of a contract, a rundown of a great number of sub-items that can appear in a given contract. A quick review of these will establish that there is a multitude of items on which contracts can vary.

In spite of this and with the recent agreement with CSC whereby U.S. Citizen Contract Employees under contract beyond one year cannot get Civil Service Retirement, Fegli and Federal Health Benefits, the tendency is to give them as many benefits as is possible and more standardization will occur as time moves in this direction.

On subsequent sheets, I outlined in rough fashion a typical CE contract which might give you a basis for coding the items cited and thus design a personnel action form and computer record.

This was attempted also for a typical Contract Agent contract.

Numbers-wise, this contract stuff is fairly big business. Approximate numbers are:

(If CE is not going overseas, there would normally be no need for allowances and benefits as: missing persons travel, overseas medical; loss of personal effects, Rehabilitation [REDACTED], etc. Similarly a contract wife would ride her husband's travel and medical benefits.

25X1A Career Agent - Would be much the same as a CE except the offset pay formula in [REDACTED] might apply. [REDACTED] ILLEGIB

The TERM would be indefinite and require 90 days notice.

Also a special paragraph on "reassignment" consideration is usually put in Career Agent contracts.

Independent Contractors

1. Fee - Generally not on scale; no provision for LPA, PSI etc. additional compensation for quarters, cost of living and other allowances is put here and is taxable.
2. Most would either come under the Tax Committee or get a 1099.
3. Benefits - Are negotiated in each case. Generally get equivalent of allowances, travel. FECA equivalent, paid vacation in lieu of home leave, any home special offset depending on cover etc.
